1. A commission for the military collaboration of the people's democracies has its principal office at Lazne Kynzvař (N51/P56), but delegations of the commission also sit at Becov (N51/P67) and at Kynsperk nad Ohři (N51/P48).
2. The objectives of the commission are: the coordination of work at the general staff level; combat cooperation at the army corps and divisional level; unification of military training and equipment; and technical collaboration.
3. Members of the commission are officers of the Czech, Polish, and Hungarian general staffs. Officers of the Bulgarian, Rumanian, and Albanian staffs come purely as observers to certain sessions. Soviet experts, often to the number of forty, are a regular part of the commission. The head of the Soviet group at present is General Sevyakov. The principal Czech delegate is General Vavra.
4. Thus far the labors of the commission have been limited to drawing up suggestions which are sent to Moscow, but which in the majority of cases receive no reply. The Soviet military mission in Prague under General Svetlev also acts without paying any attention to the commission.
